BARRON CARDS FINAL 67 TO WIN WESTERN OPEN

Special
PHOENIX, ARIZ. — Herman Barron, Jewish golfing pro who has been knocking at the door of the major American golfing tournaments for almost a decade last week was finally allowed to enter when his 72 hole score of 276 won the 42nd Open championship of the Western Golfing Association and $1,000. Barron won the title one of the few surviving major prizes, by carding a sizzling 67 on his last round.

His triumph was the first major victory Barron ever has scored, altho he already had made himself respected in the national fairway scene. He tied for fifth in last year's National Open and was once a PGA quarter-finalist. He has made the winter tour six times since 1929, but this was his first big strike. Barron was 32 last December, and has been stationed at the Fenway club in White Plains for the last seven years.

On the current tour, Barron has had a hunch that he was playing well enough to win one, and promised his wife he would score before the campaign was over. He thought he had made the grade with a 137 at the Bing Crosby tournament, but Dawson's 133 and a few other parties squelched that.

Practically every lodge in the Indianapolis

Kentucky State Association has already signified its intention of sending teams to the bowling tournament, which as last year, will be conducted on a handicap basis. Money and merchandise prizes will be awarded, and the first two teams, and first two single scorers will receive trophies.

Boston Mobilizes Jewish Groups

By Jewish Telegraph Agency

BOSTON—Realizing the necessity for coordinated action of all Jewish groups in behalf of civilian defense, and in order to give all possible cooperation to the American war effort, over 50 leaders of important Jewish organizations decided at a meeting here to create a coordinating committee so that every Jew in the community may do his part in the present grave emergency, it was announced this week.

The establishment of such a coordinating committee will give organizations the opportunity to exchange ideas, to stimulate one another to greater activity and to pool information as to the needs of the government, it was stated. The committee will not interfere in any way with the autonomy of any organization, but will serve only to coordinate the war effort at all.

Mrs. Joseph Sofnas, assisted by her two sisters, Mrs. F. Goldstein and Mrs. I. Mighdoll of Connerville, entertained Wednesday night, Feb. 4, with a miscellaneous shower at Mrs. Haynes Tea Room, in honor of Helen Levin of Cincinnati, whose marriage to Philip Cohen took place last Sunday. In The Service Now

So much interest has been shown in the doings of Indiana's Jewish boys in the service that The Post has decided to run a weekly column under the above heading. Parents and friends, not only in Indianapolis but throughout Indiana are invited to send in contributions, as are the boys in the service themselves. The Post is sent free to any member of the United States forces anywhere provided they write in for the paper themselves.

To the editor,

I have been receiving The Post every week, anxiously awaiting it. Thanks again. I have been transferred, my new address is enclosed. I'd appreciate your still sending the paper to me. Could you put my new address in the paper so my friends can see it. It would help very much. Thanks again.

AL SEGAL Speaks On One Man's Opinion

A CINCINNATI gentleman chided me on the point that I am about the only writer on Jewish affairs who never makes anything of national Jewish aspirations. He thought this is a serious lack in me. A blind spot. (He has been feeling particularly aggravated recently because The New York Times had an anti-Zionist editorial of which some leading Jews seem to approve.)

He said that for me to write of Jewish life without ever mentioning Palestine is like writing of British life without England. How, without apparent national Jewish feeling, can I presume to be a writer of Jewish life?

Especially now! he exclaimed. Now when the Jews as a nation are as much in this war as the Dutch, the Chinese and the British.

Without national Jewish feeling I am but an alien in Jewish life. As an alien I am presumptuous to write about a people to whom I am a stranger.

I replied that I have no national Jewish feeling. He looked immeasurably shocked.

"So you are an alien," he said with a tone of accusation.

"You are not going to deport me from Jewish life, are you?" I laughed.

I felt that I owed him an explanation, even though lately I have been rather irritated by some of our nationalists who have behaved as if Palestine were the heart and center of this global war and the "Jewish nation" the chief party of interest. In a world in which the majority of mankind had been marching together in a hopeful unity, they have been loudly proclaiming their special cause.

I cannot accept them as voices that speak for me or for the majority of American Jews.

It seems to me they are not serving Jewish life well when, by reason of their protestations of a separate Jewish nationhood, they put me and other Jews in the embarrassing position of having to argue that we are really Americans.

"My nationality is American and nothing else," I told my friend. "I feel no thrill at all at the idea of Jewish nationality. I resent it."

My friend said that there is no conflict between being an American and feeling a spiritual allegiance to a homeland called Palestine.

Yes, I replied, one may most properly feel a spiritual kinship to a foreign land that is revered as a cradle of culture—Palestine, for example, or Greece, or France, or England. I do reverence Palestine as the cradle of my faith but I am not running along with Palestine politicians whose current activity consists of needling the British Government in the hour of its trial. Palestine is a shrine of my religion not of my politics. I do consider it a conflict of loyalties to be an American citizen and at the same time to play the politics of another nation. It becomes a most fantastic conflict when the nation is one that went out of existence 2,000 years ago.

We are misunderstood enough and it doesn't help in the least when a small but loud minority of us gives the impression that we are outsiders whose national loyalty is divided. We protest being set apart as aliens by our enemies; God save us from our friends who would put us in a separate nationality.

"Yes, Segal," they seem to say, "You are of the Jewish nation and there's no use kicking. Nothing you may say can alter that fact."

But a lot of us do not meekly yield to being deported in this manner, though we feel no less

MILITARY INTELLIGENCE

From "The Jewish Quiz Book," by David B. Feinberg, which is one of the publications of the Jewish Book Club, we've culled some military data in which we're sure you'll be interested. Such as the fact that Rabbi Jacob Frankel was the first Jewish Chaplain to serve in the U. S. Army, having been commissioned in 1862. That, as Mussolini wouldn't like you to remind him, back in 1902-3 the Italian War Minister was General Giuseppe Ottolenghi, a Jew. That the first Yeshiva was founded, by Jochanan Ben Zakkai, as a refuge from the Torah while Jerusalem was being besieged by the Romans.

ABOUT PEOPLE

Did you know that the British fleet's Chief of Staff for Naval Operations in the Eastern Mediterranean, whose efforts have brought about the sinking of sixty per cent of the Axis convoys sent from Italy to Libya, is Commodore J. H. Edelstein? Tremendous pressure is being exercised on Governor Herbert H. Lehman of New York City, considered to be the only Democratic standard-bearer likely to defeat Thomas E. Dewey, who is certain to be the Empire State's next Republican gubernatorial candidate.

Say 3 Latin Nations Talk Dorsa Replicas

By Jewish Telegraph Agency.

NEW YORK—Jewish Federation and Welfare Funds throughout the country, exclusive of New York City, were this week approached by the Dominican Republic Settlement Association with an appeal to contribute $150,000 towards the 1942 budget of $250,000 necessary to conduct the Jewish settlement work in the Dominican Republic. It was disclosed by James N. Rosenberg, chairman of the Association. The appeal points to the fact that the successful Jewish colonization in the Dominican Republic may have an important effect on post-war Jewish immigration in Latin-American countries. Three such countries are already conducting discussions with the executive officers of the Dorsa with a view of having Jews settled in their territories, along the same lines as this is being done in the Dominican Republic.

PALESTINE DANCES
By Corine Chochem and Muriel Roth, published by Behrman's Jewish Book House, N. Y. C. Reviewed by Rabbi Charry.

Twice I turned back to the title page to make sure that I had seen the date of publication correctly. rue enough, 1941. Palestine Dances! (the word "dances" is used as a verb)—in 1941. To be sure, also, the book was written in America and not in Palestine. All the more wonder. Those two facts speak volumes—that Palestine still dances and that a dance book of Hebrew Palestinian dances with Hebrew Palestinian music is written in America. It proves again if proof is at all needed, what a remarkable transformation has taken place in Jewish life because Palestine is a life-giving reality and not alone a faith-sustaining dream. A people that can produce folk-dance and folk-song in the midst of trouble and travail cannot die and will not submit to defeat. It is as the author has stated in her admirable foreword—"The important thing is that after long hours of hard labor in the fields and factories, a people engaged in the upbuilding of a new land find new enthusiasm, new strength and new hope with which to face difficult years ahead when they dance the Horah, their dance of affirmation."—And that spirit has come to us across 6,000 miles and has given us a new affirmative hope.

"Palestine Dances!" is a wholly admirable book. One might imagine a book describing dances and dance routines would be dull. Not so Miss Chochem's creation. She has achieved her aim by being as little technical as is possible—and by using splendid photographs and drawings she has enriched her subject matter immeasurably. With it all she has put out an art-piece which every Jew should be proud to own. There is such a verve and exciting sweep in every page of music, picture or sketch, the reader is fairly carried away with enthusiasm and new-found energy.

This is a book of the new dances of Palestine: the Hora, the Tserkessia, the Scher. Now it is true, as the author points out in the foreword, that these dances have their origins in Balkan and East-European folk-dances. But here again Palestine has proved its vitality and its organic strength. In the art-forms of any people there is never creatio ex nihilo, creation of something from nothing. There is always a borrowing and an assimilating process. The living people absorbs what is foreign and makes it, it's very own by putting its own unmistakable stamp, the sign of its own personality, on that which it borrowed. That is healthy assimilation for it means organic growth.—(assimilation is dangerous and bad only when your own personality is absorbed by what is foreign). The story of art in America is such a story of borrowing, assimilating and then producing what is now unmistakably its own. This is the sign of health. So it is with the new Palestine. In all art forms it has already produced what is unmistakably Palestinian—and in the dance no less than in other forms. New proof of budding and blossoming growth. It is a good sign; a much-needed sign in these dark days when Jews in America despair so easily. There is no despair for Israel in Palestine—and it is the hope of the author that, that spirit pervade American Jewry as well. We are grateful for this book.

A word about those who made the book possible. Miss Corinne Chochem was born in Russia and came to America as a child. She studied dance with the leading instructors of this country and Europe. While in Palestine she studied the dance of the homeland. At present she has a dance studio of her own, the Rikkud Ami Dance Group. Members of that group posed for the striking photographs taken by John Mills, Jr. Black-and-white pen pictures by the eminent artist Moses Soyer add much to the beauty of the book. Muriel Roth is responsible for the splendid music arrangements. And a special word of praise must be reserved for whoever established the form and suggested the use of the lovely typography.

Behrman's Book Shop, the publishers, are to be heartily congratulated for this most worthy addition to their already long list of worthwhile books in the field of Jewish life, letters and arts.—E. C.

Mrs. Jennie Zweig Dies

SPECIAL FORT WAYNE—Death came late Saturday night, Feb. 7, to Mrs. Jennie Zweig, 70, at her residence 1035 Lake avenue, following an extended illness. She was a member of the B'nai Jacob congregation and the Sisterhood.

She is survived by her husband, Louis; two daughters, Mrs. Pauline Chase and Mrs. Dorothy the Soviet front, who before being shot on the spot, must first dig their own graves. Diamonds valued at $1,000,000 were exported from Palestine to the United States in 1941 and these exports will be doubled in 1942, it was reported this week at a conference of Palestine diamond dealers, the first of its kind ever held in Palestine. The lack of doctors in Germany and the rapid spread of a scarlet fever epidemic there this week forced the Nazi authorities to permit Jewish doctors to treat "Aryan" children throughout the Reich. An order issued by the Ministry of Health in Berlin provides, however, that only "Aryan" children who are under 11 years of age may be treated by Jewish doctors. A brochure entitled "Americans All," which gives a concise and compact running account of the history of the Jews in the United States from the days of their first settlement in America, to the present, was published this week by the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith.

Our Film Folks

By HELEN ZIGMOND

HOLLYWOOD — Beverly Hills B'nai B'rith (the movie colony's chapter) held a gala meeting this week, with the singing star, Walter Wolfe King, leading the audience in patriotic airs. Thomas Mitchell, well-loved Irish cinema-lite, read Lincoln's Gettysburg Address. And Emil Ludwig was the speaker of the evening. Reading our Encyclopedia Britannica, Ludwig takes unbrage, not at the fact that Hitler rates forty lines while he gets only thirty-two, but that the item states, "Hitler is sincere!" Never in history was there a bigger liar nor a more perfidious friend. "Every man, woman and child knows that—and even my little dog!"

As to Doochie, the best he can foresee for him is suicide—that would give him "at least one dramatic moment!"

Have you seen this week's newsreel? Some clever editor pieced together a collection of Der Foo-Roar's barking and waving of hands, using an assortment of goose steppers as background, and synchronizing the whole with the tune of Lambeth Walk. The result is a panic!

After much pro-and con discussion, the Jack Benny-Carole Lombard picture will be released . . . in about a month. One scene had to be deleted where Jack and Carole are about to make an escape by air, and Carole remarks, "What can happen in a plane?" Strange that for nearly ten years

Ernst Lubitsch wanted to direct Carole in celluloid, and this is it—the first and last.

Zigs-Zags: Mitzi Green will make a two-week personal appearance . . . tour . . . of eastern army camps. Ditto Al Jolson around Dixie. A one-reeler kidding Hitler's Aryan supremacy theory is in the making. Tentative titles for it are, "Does Nature Prefer Blondes?" or "A Day at the Races." John and Sophie Pinter, parents of the late Joe Penner, are filing suit objecting to extravagant expenditures made from the estate. Max R. Grossman, head of journalism at Boston University, will institute the first course ever given in motion picture publicity. London reports that class A, steel-concrete theatres are the safest air-raid shelters. There have been no casualties within these buildings during the war. For the South American market Disney has created a "Three Little Pigs" cartoon in which the wolf wears the Nazi uniform and the little pigs' house is built of defense stamps. Sophie Tucker is celebrating thirty-five years in show business. Frank Berle has written brother Milton's life story . . . calls it, "On Whom the Berle Tells." Wilmington, Delaware, home-town of Gloria Warren, will enjoy the world premiere of her first picture, "Always in My Heart."

A story is going the rounds concerning the optimist and the pessimist in Italy. Said the hopeful one, "You know we're going to lose this war." Answered the sour one, "Yes, but when?"

The editor's chair,

In my list of the ten most remarkable Jewish women in Indiana I certainly would include Mrs. B. Sandock of South Bend. I happened to run into Mrs. Sandock because her daughter is our correspondent, and her son-in-law is Henry Feferman, former president of The Indiana Union of Jewish Youth.

When Mrs. Sandock told me that she was raising $180 all by her self for Youth Aliyah, I immediately offered her a handsome commission on all subscriptions she would sell to The Post. Well this week her total passed the 100 mark (actually 102) and if you don't think this is a lot of work for one person, then you should see how difficult it is to get a new subscriber to this uninteresting paper.

Mrs. Sandock is a former president of the South Bend Hadassah, as you can guess, and more she is as forthright as a boxer in the ring, and hits as hard too if you try to bring up some foolishness about Jews not being real Jews.

The slogan, "Friday Night Belongs to The Temple," was contributed by me, and is not original. If those interested in building up attendance at services, such as attendance committee chairmen, presidents of congregations and rabbis, don't care to use this space on The Post's front page, that will be that. It still seems to me, that as long as The Post has such wide circulation, this offer means probably the best medium possible to reach congregation members in every community throughout Indiana and if slogans were contributed, as I suggested some weeks back, might create quite a bit of interest and competition, leading of course, and it is hoped, to increased attendance at services.

Dan Frisch, returning from Florida, called to point out the similarity between the stand of the New York Times (as in the case of a Jewish army at the moment and as anti-Zionist consistently) and the paper that Theodore Herzl was employed by. Herzl was a feuilletonist, a journalist who wrote light critical articles and essays, for the Vienna Neue Frei Presse, actually

Brotherhood Week Implemented

THE EFFECTIVE way in which Fort Wayne observes National Brotherhood week deserves commendation and emulation.

Whereas as far as is known, no large observance of this occasion will or has taken place in Indianapolis, in Fort Wayne the local committee of the National Conference of Jews and Christians, has arranged appearances before all the city's luncheon clubs, such as Kiwanis, Rotary, etc., and even at assemblies in all the city's schools, of speakers from each of the three faiths.

Friday Night

THE POST printed last week in the first sentence of the write-up about the P. S. T. Club, a small girl's group, the date of the club's anniversary dance, which was scheduled for Friday night, Feb. 20, in the hopes that notice of the night chosen would bring enough comment to influence the group to change to another night. Sure enough this week announcement came in of the change of the date of the affair. This time it is set for March 6, which according to our calendar is Friday night, too.

South Side Comes Into Its Own

THE SOUTH SIDE, the former Jewish center of the city, seems to be re-awakening with activity, and once again taking its rightful place as the abode and meeting center of a goodly part of the Indianapolis Jewish Community. Once, because the North Side grew with such an overwhelming rush, the activities on the South Side were dwarfed and the section was practically forgotten in the face of the multifarious doings on the other side of town.

But now the South Side seems to be coming into its own once again. What with the addition of two new rabbis in Rabbi David Shapiro and Rabbi Samuel S. Fox, the South Side is beginning to hum again with activity. In Red Cross work, the South Side Jewish groups have already made a name for themselves, and when approached for some work recently by the city's major Jewish group, performed notably.

The home of four synagogues, the Communal Building, and the Neustadt Talmud Torah, the South Side need never have taken a back seat, and now with its renewed activity can no longer be sloughed off as an unimportant section of the Jewish community.

Does He Provoke You?

THE POST is often accused of printing provocative articles for reasons which have to do with increased circulation. The question is then, what adjective would you apply to Al Segal's article in this week's issue?

Current Comment

District No. 4 B'nai B'rith President Commends Work of The Jewish Transcript, of Seattle, Wash.—Another thing I want to impress and I say it without reservation, is that I feel that THE JEWISH TRANSCRIPT is doing a great job, not only for the Jewish Community as a whole but during its entire career of many years, it has rendered particular service to the B'nai B'rith. Year in and out this has been the policy of the paper. For that continuous course it has earned and deserves the most sincere appreciation of the lodge, its officials and members.

It is an outstanding Jewish newspaper and is so regarded by the thoughtful members of the order in every part of the district.

Jewish by reason of the fact that we feel no national relationship to Palestine. We are Jews in the essential things of Judaism and Jewish life within America.

I fear that many Jews would, by indifference, expatriate themselves from Jewish life if our politicians succeeded in putting upon it the stamp of a political Judaism and if being a Jew became a separate political identity. Then we shall have gained a political Palestine while Judaism languishes and dies in the world because so many Jews will feel alien to political Judaism. What price nationalism?

I believe most of us want to be let alone to live our national lives as Americans solely and to be Jews in the sense of a people who have inherited a great teaching and have noble altars to guard and ideals to contribute as light for the feet of brotherhood marching.

None of us is opposed to the idea of Palestine as a place of refuge for the oppressed among us and we hope it can be made to flow with milk and honey for all of them. To that end we shall keep on contributing annually to the appeal for funds for Palestine. But not a political Palestine in which Jewish nationality is synthetically created by law, in which Jews, by force of numbers of immigrants, take political dominance over others who have lived in Palestine a long, long time.

This may be heretical utterance to the minds of men who think of Judaism as a political complex, as an irredentist movement like those among Balkan people who are never entirely happy unless they have a portion of unredeemed Transylvania or a piece of Jugo-slavia or Bessarabia. Yet, it is about time the matter were brought into open discussion and I invite the answers of people who disagree with me.

The New York Times editorial has excited people who had come to believe that the idea of Jewish nationhood is as sacredly a part of Jewish life as the Torah and the everlasting light that hangs in the synagogues.

They were made the more unhappy by what Professor Morris Raphael Cohen, renowned philosopher, said in giving his endorsement to the Times editorial. He said: "No one at all acquainted with the horrible plight of the harassed Jews in Hitler-ruled Europe doubts that hundreds of thousands and perhaps millions of Jews will have to leave Europe to find living room elsewhere and that for material as well as moral reasons, Palestine offers a haven to them. Elementary political sense and decency, however, must recognize that Palestine can be made available for this purpose only by negotiation with the native Arab population of the country. No people will submit to being made a minority in their own land. Against any such attempt the Arabs will certainly fight and in such a fight they will have the support not only of 30,000,000 Arabs but the sympathy of all lovers of democracy and fair play."

And, speaking before his organization the same week, Maurice Wertheim, president of the American Jewish Committee, said, "The Jews in America are of the American and no other nationality." So say most of us.

HADASSAH BUYS $50,000 DEFENSE BONDS

To the editor,

The local chapter of Hadassah is proud to announce that National Hadassah has invested the sum of $50,000 in defense bonds in response to the victory campaign.

At the same time let us keep up our community work and boost the sale of stamps. Mrs. I. Newman, chairman of American Affairs committee, BR. 5769, will be glad to fill orders for defense stamps at anytime as well as at regular monthly meetings. Hadassah has representation on the Marion County Defense Stamps and Bond Committee, and we should like to make a good monthly showing, therefore, urging the regular purchase of these investments. Don't forget that defense stamps and bonds will make treasured long remembered valentines.

Heller To Speak At Inter-Racial Meet

SPECIAL FORT WAYNE — A program headed by the principal address by Rabbi James G. Heller, of Cincinnati, and including a thirty-minute concert by the Junior Band of the American Legion Post No. 47, and the presentation of colors by the same Post, has been arranged for the ninth annual inter-racial mass meeting set for 2:30 p. m. this Sunday at the Shrine auditorium.

the New York Times of its day. When Herzl wrote his first pamphlet on "The Jewish State" after he had been to France where he covered the Dreyfus case, his own publishers refused then and later forever afterward to publish any of his material on Zionism, and this particular subject, if you have read any of Herzl's biographies, was a cause of an ever-recurring rift between the two parties. Although the leader and great exponent of Zionism was a member of their staff, these two Jewish publishers refused to allow any news of the movement to enter their columns, and today they are remembered solely almost in connection with this shah shah attitude to Herzl, whose turbulent life and early demise they contributed to in no small part.
